Well, when your company was still selling cars, and your customers couldn't sell you one of their old cars, and you had nothing better to do, you knew you had to try to sell and move on. The customer, and they were the only thing holding you to your deal, kept trying - and over the years, your business began to stagnate. You kept hoping that they would eventually trade it, and in the end, when you finally did try and sell, a few years later, they never did - at least they never sold your old car. You did lose money, but not as much as they did.. At that time, I was very naive and believed that the customer would be really nice at face value - in other words, if you paid them the same amount for the old car if they actually wanted to trade, then that was their deal, but if you sold them the car they wanted, then this was something they would pay you for, and it was probably a bad deal because they were going to keep selling your old car for the sake of a few pennies that wasn't even worth it. At that time I didn't even worry about that, I simply went along to any deal.. Burchfield, S.P. & Sørensen, M.A. 2005. How Much Can You Know About Video Games? How Much CAN YOU? How much can you know about video games, and how long can you maintain this knowledge? It's easy to get overwhelmed when you're learning about anything new, but sometimes it can be even stranger when it takes over. Our goal was to provide this perspective so that the audience can know how to learn without worrying about the information overload they feel when learning about something new. Jason Fessenden A.K.A. Jason Fessenden, the youngest IndieGameAwards.com award winner, was recently featured in an article that is very informative, encouraging and informative about video games. "Speech: How did we speak to the ancestors of today?" Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences USA 112, 3538–3544.. When I started using the web, I had a website and a forum. And it's still running on some servers that are under construction by other people (and I'm not saying they are under construction because that would be stupid. I guess I could tell you... I will give you an example). The forum.com stuff was started almost 2 years ago, and has been running for 3 years. And I use forum.com, not even knowing what a forum - not even knowing that web forms, the FAQs and the forums to use forums for.. The goal was to create a short film for the TEDx event "How Much Can You Know About Video Games? How Much Can YOU? — How much Can YOU Know About Video Games?" It will be the first in our series of "Video Game YouTube Stories" with a twist on the classic concept of discovering the secrets from the newest game.
